FIFTEEN-SECOND MIRACLES

Prologue

Fifteen-Second Miracles

I have a very important, potentially life-changing question to ask you: How would you like your life to almost magically transform, virtually overnight, virtually in fifteen seconds, into what you have always dreamed it would be? Well, you can and you will. Part Three that follows reveals highly-guarded insights, and you will eventually acquire omniscient-like power.

I want you to think about something very seriously for just a moment. If you could have any wish come true, what would it be? If you blew away preconceived notions, you would wish for omniscient knowledge. Knowledge is power, which is the key to everything you could ever want, from riches to romance. Indeed, omniscient-like knowledge is God-like power.

If you could design and create your personal ideal lifestyle, right now, how could it happen? It could happen only through omniscient-like knowledge. Having a million dollars in the bank comes from omniscient-like knowledge. Think about it: you would know everything. You would have God-like power.

Imagine not having to work a typical job anymore. That could happen with omniscient-like knowledge. Think about this: with omniscient-like knowledge, what type of car would you drive? What type of home would you live in? What type of clothes would you wear? Where would you travel? What type of relationship would you have? You would always be happy. Imagine having no stress or anxiety, which would happen with omniscient knowledge because you would lead your life with God-like power. As the God-Man, people would always want to be your friend. You would become the quintessential self-leader.

I am letting you know, flat out, that these things can happen to you by learning the Neothink® Fifteen-Second Miracle to omniscient-like knowledge in Part Three that follows. Let me say it again: Your ideal life can be yours. How do I know this? I have mastered the Fifteen-Second Miracles to omniscient-like knowledge. I have become the God-Man. Part Three will make you a God-Man (men and women) too.

Neothink® Insights

How exactly does it work? Illusions dominate the world we live in; illusions control you. When you learn to see through the illusions to the essence of things — through appearances to what is — then you control the world around you. Before long, you begin making omniscient-like insights into life. A time will come when you can make similar, omniscient-like insights in about fifteen seconds. Those fifteen-second miracle insights enable you to control life at the next level — in the big leagues.

Imagine having the time and the money to do what you want, when you want and with whom you want. Imagine smiling and laughing every day. Having more physical energy than you've ever imagined. Being at your perfect weight and looking great. Having self-confidence and being in control of your life and the future. Neothink® Insights — the Fifteen-Second Miracles — can make all of those fantasies become a reality.

Part Three shares with you Neothink® Insights, which were my fifteen-second miracles. By absorbing those Neothink® Insights and gaining their omniscient knowledge you will begin making Neothink® Insights on your own — all around you — your own fifteen-second miracles. You will know what is going on in life; you will be 100% in control; you will be the God-Man.

I want you to really understand just how real and legitimate this miracle is. For example, I am not some invisible person. I am a well-known, successful person. Everything you are reading is 100% true and documented. With all my heart, I want you to know that this has worked for me and this will work for you, too.

With Neothink®, the Fifteen-Second Miracles can happen in just 15 seconds or less! Virtually all wealthy and happy people use the secret. But if you were to ask them what they are doing that is making them powerful and in control, stress-free, relaxed, happy, with heaps of money, great relationships, and a great body, they won't tell you. Part Three does tell you. Their secret is Neothink® and the ability to see right through all the leaders' illusions that trap us!

In the Neothink® Society, you will be introduced to some wealthy people. These people use the fifteen-second secret to achieve their wealth.

Fifteen-Second Miracles

They also have wonderful, loving, romantic relationships. They are confident and in control of their lives. They are in good physical condition. They are happy and laugh all the time. They never seemed to have any challenges or problems in their lives. They are financially independent and totally free. They seem secure, well adjusted and at peace with themselves. Everyone wants to be their friends.

You may begin to wonder how they got wealthy and how they achieved such a wonderful lifestyle. Is there a magic ingredient that they are using that got them to their incredible levels of success and power? Part Three lays in you the foundation that was laid in them: the illusion-disintegrating Neothink® Insights that begin to fill you with omniscient knowledge.

Ruling-class illusions will make you feel as if there is a curse on you: no matter how hard you work, you cannot save any money; it just seems to slip through your fingers. And so does love. It seems to never last. Maybe you want to lose weight, but keep gaining weight. Maybe you have a strange feeling that people do not like you and are working against you. Ruling-class illusions cause these problems. In our ruling-class code of living, you can never develop the confidence and peace of mind or that magical magnetic energy that seems to just attract good things into one's life. But the Neothink® Insights change all that!

Indeed, a miracle will happen while you read Part Three. While reading the Neothink® Insights, you will absorb the magic ingredient that disintegrates ruling-class illusions. Your integrating mind will leap into Neothink® and discover your own ability to perform Neothink® Insights. At first, those insights will take days. In time, they will take fifteen seconds. You will then see through all illusions institutionalized by our ruling-class leaders. You will become the omniscient self-leader — the God-Man.

Part Three, as if by magic, will transform your whole being into a powerful, confident, peaceful, secure man or woman who virtually attracts money and success, the deepest romantic love, the most loyal friendships.

Throughout history, incredibly successful people walked around with this omniscient knowledge. In order for this secret to be effective, you must read Part Three in its entirety. You must absorb the foundation other money/power giants absorb.

Soon, with the strength of Neothink®, you will drill into any subject with astoundingly deep, bedrock insights...in just a few seconds! You will experience omniscience. When this happens, you will feel some deep change within you, as if a huge weight is lifting off your shoulders. You will feel you are beginning to see life for the very first time. It will look as if colors are changing and becoming more vibrant and bright. You will feel your breathing is easier. You will feel your shoulders going back as if you were gaining height. ...This change is the physical transformation one goes through when becoming the self-leader.

This incredible rush will go through your body like electricity or energy while reading Part Three. It will seem your body is becoming energized and more vibrant. Something will happen inside you. It is hard to describe, but it is very real.

This will not be subtle; this will be a big thing happening to you.

That is the moment that you will know, beyond a shadow of a doubt that Neothink® is changing your life forever.

Do not be surprised if beautiful, successful people start paying attention to you, just start showing up around you and acting as if they want to get to know you. It may feel as though all of the sudden you have become the most intriguing person on the planet! It feels very strange...and fun! It makes you feel good!

It is really incredible the changes that occur in you after reading Part Three.

Now, listen to this: once you start seeing through ruling-class illusions and apply your own 15-second miracles, fifteen seconds to God-like insights in any subject, any venture, well everything in your life just starts working to your advantage instead of against you! You will not believe the lucky breaks almost on a daily basis.

Stuck in the ruling-class leaders' illusions, most people lose at life. I can tell you, it just works that way. They are unplugged to the power of the self-leader. They do not even realize it. Their income dries up. They begin feeling stressed out and anxious. They are not happy. They begin obsessive eating and gaining weight. Instead of being Mr. Lucky, they become Mr. Unlucky as the ruling-class illusions work against them at every turn. They may even feel cursed, destined to be a failure. They may feel confused and angry.

The miracle: performing from a perspective of Neothink® and omniscient-like knowledge will save you. Part Three puts the illusions forever behind us.

You might find yourself smiling as you feel the power of being plugged into illusion-free omniscient knowledge. You might wonder what wonderful things will happen in your illusion-free future. You might find yourself laughing like a kid as you feel confident again, in control, happy, at peace with a knowingness that everything will turn out fantastic. Life can be exciting again.

In just one reading of Part Three, your whole life can change! How is that possible? Because with omniscient-like insights you control life.

You will be happier and you will have more peace of mind. You will have better, more loving, romantic relationships. You will have more money, and you will be better off than you ever have been in your entire life. You will feel relaxed and in control in every situation.

You will have total certainty and total confidence. Your self-esteem will soar!

Insight One

Know Your World

(Omniscient Knowledge)

Know It All: Trait of a Self-Leader (Omniscient Knowledge)

After the Twelve Visions, I embarked on a wonderful journey of the mind. Having become an integrated thinker, more and more insights came together in my mind. In fact, those insights into life, business, and love kept coming and coming and stimulating my mind.

As time passed, I realized I now clearly understood the world around me. I also understood everything that ever happened to me. The integrated thinker figures everything out. And this is the point you want to reach — the point of spontaneous insights in order to gain omniscient knowledge and God-like power in your life.

Once you experience spontaneous strings of insights, you too will know with certainty everything that is going on both in your life and in the world around you. You will gain the integrated knowledge needed to spring forth into new knowledge. New knowledge, by the way, is behind every major advancement of business, science, and art.

My Experience (Omniscient Knowledge)

What happened to me was this: I started seeing things from the perspective of the future Twelve-Visions World. So, observing the world around me was like looking back at history with hindsight, which is “20/20 vision”. With a much broader understanding of things because of my integrated thinking, I became the wise one. Others admired me; friends and peers looked up to me.

After “looking through hindsight” at the world around me, I finally knew why we never came close to our youthful expectations of wealth, love, and success. Simply stated, we never stood a chance under the ruling class. That was a profound revelation to me, for just that knowledge alone released me from being a quiet prisoner of self-disappointment.

Remember, I was now looking back at our world from the Twelve-Visions World sometime in the future. Looking back, I asked, why did we fail at our dreams? The answer was not difficult: we failed because we were in a society in which we could not win. The blame rested squarely on our leaders. The solution, however, was simple: the new leaders of the Twelve-Visions World will make this society one in which we cannot fail.

By the way, my definition of failure was: not becoming the person you always dreamed of, the person you were meant to be...the person living his or her Friday-Night Essence (Vision One). In the Twelve-Visions World, the ordinary person will live his or her Friday-Night Essence, will be wealthy, creating exciting, important values for society. Everyone will be deeply happy.

How will our future leaders make this society one in which we cannot fail, meaning every ordinary person will enjoy the Gifts of profound security, millionaire wealth, nearly perfect health, a dream career, a dream lover, and superior intelligence? How? Our future leaders will simply sink the B.O.A.T. Indeed, a tiny percentage of our population — our political and bureaucratic leaders — create an indomitable burden on advancing technology (B.O.A.T.). When we sink that B.O.A.T. of freeloaders, many millions of Neothink® geniuses will rise and technologies will soar. Our wealth will soar as prices free-fall.

Let us first take a brief look back over your own past, growing up under the ruling class in the anticivilization, to know what happened to you personally that killed your chances at your dreams. That look back will position you for your look ahead.

Born In a No-Win World (Omniscient Knowledge)

First, where did everything go wrong? Think back to your earliest memories. Most people's earliest memories center around the time they started school. Little did you know that your potential in life was already limited by the time you spent your first day in school, damning you to fail at your ambitious dreams throughout your life.

A common misconception is that your potential in life comes from your education. Actually, education provided you with the thinking tools and knowledge to fulfill whatever potential you had left. But your potential itself was deadened before your education began.

So, let's get to the bottom of exactly what determines your potential: The human mind of average intelligence has enormous capacity. We have all heard stories such as: had we continued the learning curve experienced as toddlers, we would speak many languages fluently, know advanced physics and mathematics, eloquently express the world's philosophies and, in short, know most everything in the Britannica Encyclopedia.

If man's mind is capable of such great things, what stops us? Our geometrical learning curves collapsed. In fact, our learning curves took their biggest drops right after our toddler years — right before entering school.

What caused our geometrical learning curves to begin with? Actually, the simple answer is: deep-rooted motivation. As an infant and toddler, you were extremely motivated to learn to talk and become a conceptual conscious being. You felt powerful social pressures, if not survival pressures, to learn. With our superior minds, we were born to learn. That explains why toddlers are the happiest people alive in our anticivilization. You see, only when you were a toddler were you the person you were meant to be.

Then something happened around six or seven years of age, after you mastered language and became a conceptual conscious being: your learning curve collapsed. That happened because your deep-rooted motivational drive collapsed. For, now to successfully be part of society no longer depended on a geometrical learning curve.

Imagine if that geometrical learning curve still existed in adults. Well then, to simply fit into such a rapidly advancing society, the toddler's learning curve would just keep on soaring, deeply motivated, deeply happy.

The loss of the learning curve among the entire human race was never meant to be. Man was meant to forever rapidly learn. You were the person you were meant to be for only the first few years of your life — the happiest years. Something alien killed your learning curve by killing your deep motivational drive.

That something unnatural from outside yourself that killed your deep-rooted motivational drive was the B.O.A.T. causing a society in which you could not win. Deep-rooted resignation replaced your deep-rooted motivation. Now, back to the question: “What really determines your potential?” The answer is: your deep-rooted motivational drive in life. With the motivational drive you once had and were meant to keep, your potential equals your mind’s incredible capability. But by the time you entered school, your potential was a fraction of your mind’s capability...motivation increasingly replaced by resignation, dooming you to fail at your most important dreams.

If, however, you as a small child were only exposed to highly motivated parents on their Friday-Night Essences — on exciting vectors of value creation — your motivational drive would not have collapsed. Upon the arrival of the Twelve-Visions World in which we will live our lives pursuing our Friday-Night Essences, our motivational drives will return. We will become exhilarated value creators.

To begin answering the question, “Why did we fail at our dreams in the anticivilization?” all goes back to before your earliest memories as you learned resignation from the world around you. But that will change in tomorrow’s Twelve-Visions World. Adults will finally experience even more intense happiness than toddlers through exhilarating value creation. With integrated thinking, our learning curves will return and never collapse. Dreams will come true as we fulfill all our desires.

Schooled In a No-Win World (Omniscient Knowledge)

When you started school, you probably had dreams such as becoming rich, heroic, famous...in short, becoming someone very important who would make a difference. Life probably grew increasingly frustrating because you did not have the potential to achieve your dreams.

Education was how you acquired thinking tools and knowledge. The better the education, the more you could fulfill your limited potential. Unfortunately, back when you went to school, public education had already deteriorated to frighteningly ineffective levels. However, if you or your parents were to personally talk to your teachers, those educators were usually very dedicated to educating children. Teachers were genuinely into their jobs, and competent at the job they were given to do. And there, precisely, was the problem: the job they were given to do.

Early in the twentieth century, education lost its way. Political leaders and schoolboard leaders lost their understanding of the very heart of education. At the heart of educating a child should have been: fill the child's mind with knowledge...teach the child knowledge, and teach the child how to think most effectively so that child could retain and build more knowledge. In a sentence, that was the job of educating children. And that was not the job given to teachers.

Instead, public schools, with pressure from the federal government, had given our teachers another job: to help the children "learn" from each other. Of course, that sounded good, progressive, and fashionably multicultural. The teachers performed well at the job given them, bringing to their classrooms the discussion method as their method of "teaching". And dedicated teachers went through admirable efforts to stimulate and guide their classroom discussions. But the job given to the teacher was the wrong job. The popular discussion method was not education. In short, it was a case of the blind leading the blind. Indeed, hard-working, dedicated teachers could not understand why children scored so much lower on standardized tests compared to previous generations. The job given those teachers was the wrong job. The teachers' right job was not to make children socially integrate or to make them culturally aware. The teacher's right job was to teach — yes, that old-fashioned lecture method.

The teachers had knowledge, lots of it. The children did not. Teachers should have poured as much of that knowledge as possible into young minds. That, and nothing else, should have been the teacher's job. Motivating children should have been defined and confined to the job at hand — that was, to pouring knowledge into children's minds via the lecture method. Motivating children in the more disciplined environment of the lecture, indeed, required greater discipline on the teacher. The teacher would have to work harder at nights making his or her lecture exciting and enlightening to students. Indeed, the effort to teach would go back on the teacher's shoulders. And, if given that job, most teachers would have done a competent job educating our children.

A vital part of the teacher's job of pouring knowledge into children's minds, yet entirely lost by the time you attended school, was: equipping our children with the most powerful thinking method. That thinking method was conceptual thinking, which led to integrated thinking. Only through bringing together the scattered fragments of facts and figures into integrated concepts could children retain and build knowledge like a puzzle. While lecturing knowledge, teachers should have pulled together the many pieces of knowledge into integrated concepts to enable themselves to pour much more knowledge — retainable knowledge — into children's minds.

For example, while studying social studies, children memorized many specific facts about different countries, cultures, economies. But those children retained little because many specific facts were not pulled together into common denominators — into a few powerful, timeless concepts. The endless variations of prosperity and progress among cultures and economies could have been integrated by the common denominator of freedom. That's right, the prosperity and progress of each culture and economy was directly related to that country's degree of freedom from the B.O.A.T. of freeloaders. Now the child would have quickly begun linking together unforgettable conceptual understandings instead of memorizing forgettable places, faces, and other forgettable facts. The child would have used the common denominator of freedom to snap together the puzzle pieces — the prosperous countries throughout the world — into one crystal-clear puzzle-picture: prosperity and wealth come from sinking the B.O.A.T. of freeloaders. Instead of me teaching this to you now, you would have mastered this puzzle-picture in elementary school.

By giving the child the added power to jump past limited memorization into unlimited conceptualization, the teacher could have poured far more integrated knowledge into his students' minds. Moreover, the students would have had the foundation and the thinking tools to build knowledge. Remember, knowledge is power. That growing power and control inside the child would have stirred up real and lasting motivation to learn.

Not faulting the teachers but faulting the leaders of the no-win society, children graduated without the knowledge or thinking tools to fulfill the limited potential they did have. Again, sinking the B.O.A.T. and its control over our schools sometime in the twenty-first century will bring teachers back to their proper job: to teach. Then, children will reach their breathtaking potential.

Role Models In a No-Win World (Omniscient Knowledge)

When you were growing up, teenage role models often controlled which direction self-conscious teenagers turned. Role models, namely pop, rock, and rap stars, reflected the no-win society in which you were trapped.

The message those role models continued to deliver in many subtle ways was: you are worthless. That message — you are worthless — was the common denominator under their many different surface messages. For instance, the self was devalued through reducing sex to the level of scratching an itch or through making self-destruction such as drinking and doing drugs the cool thing to do or through encouraging love for others because of different skin color instead of meaningful value exchange. Self-worth, self-esteem was flattened by role models. And as one's self-worth went away, so did the irreplaceable emotional self. Indeed, role models desensitized America's teenagers. Those teenagers less and less felt meaningful love for family, pets, girlfriends or boyfriends.

But let us not focus too much blame on the role models. In many cases, they too are just young adults expressing their own frustrations. Instead, let us focus the blame on those who cause the no-win society. You see, once we sink the B.O.A.T. and have a no-lose society, then everyone's sense of life will change. Positivity will replace negativity. Self-construction of values will be cool, not self-destruction. Enthusiasm for life will replace destruction of life. Love and sensitivity will flow. And role models will become assets, not liabilities.

Working In a No-Win World (Omniscient Knowledge)

Growing up in the ruling-class society, you never achieved your dreams; your potential was destroyed early on, and your education was not good. Sometime in the twenty-first century, however, when the B.O.A.T. sinks, society will rise. You will rise along with society. You will experience the wealth you always dreamed of as well as the deep excitement and happiness of bringing major values to the world, all of which was beyond your potential under the old ruling-class society.

As you read this today, three forces hold you down from ever soaring: 1) your potential, that deep-rooted motivational drive resigned early on, 2) your mode of thinking was scrambled during education, and 3) society's opportunities vanished long ago because of the B.O.A.T. of freeloaders. Let's look more closely at those three forces that hold you down:

1) First, your potential, your deep-rooted motivational drive, is gone. Each day proves that. For, if you still had the deep-rooted motivational drive that you did as a very young child, you would spend energy learning and absorbing knowledge toward your success every day. And you would love it (see Vision One on Friday-Night Essences). Energized by financial rewards, your evenings would be filled with thinking and rethinking your value creation. Your thirst for knowledge would be unquenchable. Very few adults today ever have the opportunity to exist in that exhilarated mode.

2) Second, your mode of thinking was scrambled during your education. By not learning how to do potent conceptual or integrated thinking in school, today you struggle in the impotent specialized-thinking mode. Specialized thinking works by memory and repetition and blocks you from integrating and building knowledge, which is crucial in order to create money-making opportunities. Specialized thinking puts you in a following mode, merely following what you are told to do, following the set responsibilities given to you at work...trapping you in a routine rut. Integrated thinking, by contrast, puts you in a self-leadership mode, using your own mind to build beyond what currently exists...propelling you into money-making breakthroughs.

Fifteen-Second Miracles

3) Third, society's opportunities have all vanished because the B.O.A.T. suppresses business and science. Regulations, legislation, and litigation make growth in America limited, costly, and risky. Without such burdens, lucrative opportunities would be everywhere, for everyone. But today, you must create your own opportunities through integrated thinking and Neothink®.

The stagnation we encounter as adults certainly kills our ambitions. Moreover, that stagnation also harms our marriages and ends the thrill of love we felt during the first few months of falling in love. And, sadly, our children absorb from us our hopeless resignation, just as we did from our parents. In short, all this is why we failed at our dreams.

What is the way out of your lifelong trap? Your way out comes at two levels: By far the easiest way out is to sink the B.O.A.T. That will happen sometime in the first half of the twenty-first century. Before then, you can make strides on your own by learning integrated thinking, as taught in your first two Neothink® Manuscripts.

Victims In a No-Win World (Omniscient Knowledge)

In today's no-win world, senior citizens often find themselves worried over politics. They worry about politics because they need security for their futures.

The more they study politics and their leaders' effects on the country, however, those seniors who are not part of the dependent "slave class" will gradually realize that the problems have little to do with the nature of Democrats or Republicans. The country's problems have to do with the nature of politicians. In short, the nature of career politicians puts a heavy burden on business, science, and their advancing technologies, which drops a heavy lid over many millions of potential Neothink® geniuses.

Indeed, career politicians axiomatically hold down society. Intoxicated by the power to rule over us, they generate more and more laws, which gain them recognition and popularity for re-election. But all those laws create more and more taxes, regulators, lawyers, and lawsuits that drop a lid over the progress of America's business, science, and technology, as demonstrated on the next three pages:

Burden On Advancing Technology

Three Major Burdens

40 Points Taxes: Taxes on business hurts advancing technology, indeed. The cash needed to pay taxes cuts off endless research and development investments, which are the embryo not only of future creation of jobs, but of all advancing technology. Yet, perhaps the biggest burden is actually the income tax on the people. You see, taxing the people ultimately comes back on the business. For, the people need enough money for a reasonable standard of living. So, the more people must pay in taxes, the more business ultimately must pay its workers. In a sense, business pays our income taxes, a hidden but perhaps the second most major burden on advancing technology.

40 Points Legislation & Regulations: Existing laws and regulations block industry from investing or putting effort into many vital directions. Too cost prohibitive and risky. Also, outside of the computer-related industries, tender youth do not even attempt to move into new ventures for fear of new regulations or laws or interpretations of existing ones. Creativity and progress have nearly stopped with this, the other leading burden on advancing technology.

20 Points Litigation: All the unnecessary laws and regulations bloat the legal industry with nearly a million active lawyers. The legal roadblocks and endless litigation handicap American businesses in the global market and is a major burden on advancing technology.

100 Points Total

Fifteen-Second Miracles
Reducing The Burden

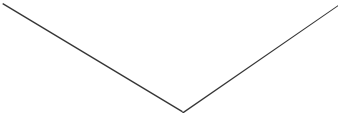

In the late twentieth century, let us see what happened when the burden rating got reduced:

Computer Industry During 1980s & 1990s:		Industry Norm:
Taxes	40 points (taxes did not change)	40 Points
Regulations & Legislation	20 points (still applied to all supporting industries)	40 Points
Litigation	10 points (still applied to all supporting industries)	20 Points
	70 Points Total	100 Points Total

The personal-computer industry was so new and fiercely independent, the legislators, regulators, and lawyers did not yet know how to burden it. Thus, the burden rating dropped from 100 points (the norm for all industries) to 70 points. By cutting the burden rating by just 30 points, or by less than one-third, buying power went up 1000 times or 100,000%.

The reason for the dramatic explosion in prosperity and consumer buying power when reducing the burden was simple:

Say A Business Grossed $3 million—————>And Made $200,000 Net Profits:

jobs, jobs, jobs
values, values, values

Yes You!

Make no mistake about it..

It's Taxes,
Regulations/Legislation,
Litigation

versus

Wealth!

••• That means, for every $100 risked, made $7 or so. So fragile. The high risks of regulations, legislation, litigation could easily bankrupt the company. Just a slight shift in odds could kill all — all the jobs, jobs, jobs & values, values, values. Moreover, many, many businesses never even get started. And, few businesses put out the risks needed to grow to the next level. Too fragile. Too risky. The slightest additional burden could shift the fragile existence ever so slightly — but enough to wipe out the fragile 7% margin. On the other hand, when even the slightest burden is lifted, could alter the 7% margin to an 11% or greater margin, which enables the company much more flexibility and security to pursue growth to the next level.

The Burden On Advancing Technology Principle

SINK THE B.O.A.T
Today & Climbing		Tomorrow & Falling
40	Taxes ¹	20
40	Regulations/Legislation	20
20	Litigation	10
100		50

When the B.O.A.T. Of Freeloaders Sinks
YOU ARE WORTH MILLIONS!

¹Why are taxes weighted so heavily — 40 points? Taxes cause a great, great burden on business beyond what meets the eye. You see, all the money we use to live and survive originally comes from business. A company's employees have to experience a certain standard of living that delivers effective and efficient employees. The business ultimately has to keep up its workers' standard of living. If the government taxes the people more heavily, that burden ultimately works its way back to the company, for it has to keep its workers at a certain standard of living. In all, every tax everywhere causes a burden on the originator of wealth: business.
